

6516205652.txt

To whom it may concern,
I travel for a living and my XM Radio and the weather/traffic stations they provide are invaluable to me in my travels. They provide concise, continuous traffic reports that are there when I need them, not after 5 minutes of commercials when local broadcast stations feel I need them.

I see no reason local stations would fight this service other than their fear of losing listeners because the satellite radio stations are quite frankly better. Let the free market play out and let the better product win.

Regards,
Bryan Vinson